

10 Feelings

Speaking 1: your feelings

A Answer these questions with a partner.

1. Are you an emotional person?
2. Do you show your feelings or do you hide your feelings?

Vocabulary 1: situations and feelings

A Talk with a partner. Use these adjectives to talk about how the people in the pictures are feeling.

happy sad angry disappointed bored nervous excited upset proud frightened relaxed confused worried surprised annoyed scared

B Listen to some students and check the pronunciation. Then practise saying the words.

C How do you feel right now? Ask your partner how he or she is feeling.

Grammar check

When we talk about how we feel at a particular moment, we can use be + adjective.
I'm sad. / He's nervous. / She was very disappointed.

We use adjectives when we talk about how things make us feel.

Subject + get + adjective

I get angry when ... / He gets upset if ...

Subject + verb + object

It worries me. / It frightens me. / You're confusing me. / She really annoyed me.

Subject + make + object + adjective

It makes me happy / sad / nervous. / It made me so angry. / He made her very proud.

Remember that the -ed adjective describes how the person feels.

The -ing adjective describes the thing.

I'm bored today. / This book is really boring.

I was disappointed with the movie. / The movie was disappointing.

Pronunciation check

Words like frightened and frightening are difficult for students to say. Most native speakers produce a sound that you cannot find on the phonetic chart. The sound is made in the top of the nose.

Listen to these words that have the sound. Then practise saying them.

1. frightened 2. frightening 3. certainly 4. curtains 5. important

Speaking 2: saying how you feel about things

A Look at these questions and think about how you would answer them.

1. What makes you happy?
2. When were you last excited about something?
3. What makes you really angry?
4. What do you worry about?
5. When did you last get nervous about something?
6. What do you do to relax?

B Listen to some students answering the questions. Make notes.

C Walk around the class. Ask and answer each question in Exercise A with a different classmate. Then ask some similar questions with more of the adjectives from Vocabulary 1A.

Vocabulary 2: extreme adjectives

A Match the adjectives 1–6 with the more extreme adjectives a–f.

- | | | | |
|---------------|--------------------|--------------|--------------|
| 1. good ____ | 2. bad ____ | a. furious | b. terrified |
| 3. happy ____ | 4. surprised ____ | c. fantastic | d. amazed |
| 5. angry ____ | 6. frightened ____ | e. terrible | f. delighted |

B Listen to some students using extreme adjectives to answer questions.

C Listen again and complete these sentences.

1. I get absolutely furious when people are _____.
2. I _____ last year. I was absolutely terrified before I _____, but then when I _____, it was absolutely fantastic.
3. When _____, I was absolutely delighted.

Watch out!
typical errors

I'm very furious. X

I'm absolutely happy. X

I was amazing to see her again. X

Exam tip: If you're telling the examiner how you feel about something, try to use vocabulary and stress and intonation that makes the examiner want to listen.

D Here are two typical cards for part 2 of the Speaking Module. Work with a partner – one of you is A, the other is B. You have a minute to think about it and make notes.

A

Describe something exciting that happened to you recently.

Say ...

- what happened.
- where you were.
- who you were with.
- how you felt.

B

Describe a surprise that you have had recently.

Say ...

- what happened.
- where it happened.
- who you were with or if you were alone.
- why you were so surprised.

E Take it in turns to speak about what's on your card for about two minutes.

Listening

10

Listening 1: preparing to listenA Look at these questions about phobias. How many can you answer?

1. What is a phobia?
2. How many people have phobias?
3. What examples of phobias are given?
4. What may cause phobias?

B  Listen to the introduction to a radio programme about phobias. Answer the questions in Exercise A.C Look at the pictures. What phobia does each show?D  Listen to the rest of the programme. In what order does the speaker mention the phobias in Exercise C?Listening 2: classifying*A  Read the questions carefully. Then listen again and answer them.

What does the speaker say about each of the phobias 1–5?

- Write:
- | | |
|----------|---|
| P | if the person with the phobia does not like being with other people |
| H | if the person with the phobia stays away from parts of his or her house |
| T | if thinking about it can make it worse |
| C | if it can be cured easily |

1. arachnophobia ___
2. social phobia ___
3. aerophobia ___
4. agoraphobia ___
5. claustrophobia ___

B Read these statements about the task you have just done. Mark them (T) true or (F) false.

1. There was quite a lot to read in the instructions. ___
2. It was easy to know what you had to do. ___
3. You needed to read and listen at the same time. ___
4. The speaker made the points P, H, T and C in that order. ___
5. You needed to use some letters more than once. ___

Question-type tip: Some listening and reading tasks ask you to classify. There are usually more instructions to read, and you need to be sure about what you have to do. The speaker will answer the questions in the correct order but, of course, he or she won't mention each point in the same order. You need to read carefully before you listen and continue to read as you listen.

Listening 3: practise classifying

Listen to the same speaker talking about three more phobias. Match the pictures with the extracts. There are two pictures that you do not need.

Question-type tip: In this task, the extracts are in the correct order but the statements that you have to listen for are not. You must read the statements carefully first so that you know what to listen for.

Listen again and answer the questions.

For questions 1–6, write:

- A If the statement refers to the first extract.
- B If the statement refers to the second extract.
- C If the statement refers to the third extract.

1. This phobia affects people at a particular time of the year. _____
2. People with this phobia will not go to some public places. _____
3. This phobia may cause people to hurt themselves. _____
4. This phobia mostly affects very young people. _____
5. People might think this phobia is a normal condition. _____
6. People with this phobia will not watch something on the television. _____

C

Check the key on page 270. How many questions did you answer correctly?

D

Tick the sentences about the listening task that are true for you and think about how you can answer more questions correctly next time.

1. I understood the overall gist and matched the pictures easily.
2. I understood the instructions for the classifying task quite easily.
3. I needed time to read all the points before I was ready to listen.
4. I am happy with how many questions I answered correctly.
5. I would find this task more difficult if I only heard the recording once.

Key vocabulary in context

Circle the correct option in each sentence.

1. If you suffer from something, you enjoy it / it is a problem for you.
2. If you panic, you behave normally / do things without thinking.
3. If you avoid something, you don't go near it / try to find it whenever you can.
4. If something is approaching, it is coming towards you / going away from you.

Reading 1: preparing to readA Tick the correct definition of stress below.

- A Stress is a feeling of worry because of problems in your life.
 B Stress is a feeling of excitement because something good is going to happen.
 C Stress is a feeling of happiness because everything in your life is as you planned it.

B Talk in small groups. What are the most common causes of stress?Reading 2: using topic sentences to predict*A What do you remember about topic sentences? Complete each statement with one word only.

1. The topic sentence should tell the reader what the rest of the _____ is about.
2. Other information in the paragraph should _____ the topic sentence.
3. If information is not related to the topic sentence, the writer should start a _____ paragraph.

B Here are the topic sentences from seven paragraphs in a text about stress. Read them and then answer the questions that follow with a partner.

Paragraph 1: Stress is worry and anxiety in your life.

Paragraph 2: The most common cause of stress is having financial problems.

Paragraph 3: Pressure and worry at work is another cause of stress.

Paragraph 4: There is lot of stress in people's personal relationships.

Paragraph 5: Many people suffer stress because of their health.

Paragraph 6: People become very anxious about the little problems they face every day.

Paragraph 7: People have found ways to deal with stress.

1. Do you get a clear idea of what the text will be about from reading only the topic sentences?
2. Can you see how the text will be organized from looking only at the topic sentences?
3. Can you predict what supporting information will be in each paragraph?
4. In which of the paragraphs will each of these supporting ideas be?

- the car breaking down ____
- between 50 and 60 possible causes of stress ____
- an elderly relative moving into the family home ____
- the cost of living is rising ____
- yoga or other forms of relaxation exercise ____
- their boss does not understand them ____
- losing eyesight or hearing ____

C Now read the text and check your answers.

Life Can Be Stressful

Stress is worry and anxiety in your life. Stress stops you relaxing, it is the most common cause of heart disease and it can lead to cancer. Stress can cause poor concentration, can affect judgement and can result in accidents. Stress can be the cause of family break-ups, violence and even suicide. So what are the main causes of stress in a typical modern lifestyle? A study has identified between 50 and 60 possible causes of stress, and here are the five most frequent.

The most common cause of stress is having financial problems. People cannot do the things they want to do because they lack money. Debts are growing because mortgage repayments are increasing and credit card bills need to be paid. The cost of living is rising, and it all adds up to worry.

Pressure and worry at work is another cause of stress. People worry that there is change and people worry when there is no change. They may feel that their boss does not understand them or that he makes life difficult for them. If people think that they are doing their job badly or that they are about to lose their job, it is a huge cause of anxiety.

There is lot of stress in people's personal relationships. Disagreements with a husband or wife, arguments with children and difficulties with relatives can all cause anxiety. An elderly relative moving into the family home or an older child leaving are both causes of tension. The death or the serious illness of a family member or close friend is a major cause of stress.

Many people suffer stress because of their health. Common illnesses, like heart disease and high blood pressure, are a common worry. As people grow older, they become anxious about losing their eyesight or hearing. People worry about gaining weight and losing weight and about not having the time to lead a healthy lifestyle.

People become very anxious about the little problems they face every day. Difficulties getting to work on the train or the car breaking down are common causes of worry, and people spend time thinking about machines and devices around the house that have gone wrong. People have lists of tasks that are never completed, and they worry that they will never have time to relax.

People have found ways to deal with stress. Some do yoga or other forms of relaxation exercise to prevent them from becoming over-anxious, while others claim that taking part in hard physical activity helps them to work off stress. Everyone should make sure that they spend some time every day doing what makes them happy. Stress is a killer.

D Did reading the topic sentences first make the text easier to read?

Exam tip: Remember that when you are doing the Reading Module, understanding the topic sentence will help you to know where to look back to find answers.

Reading 3: practise predicting from topic sentences

A Read only the topic sentence highlighted in each paragraph in the text on the next page, and think about ...

- what the whole text is about.
- how the text will be organized.
- what supporting information will be in each paragraph.

B Read questions 1–6 and guess which paragraph the information will be found in.

C Read the text and answer all the questions.

For questions 1–6, say in which paragraph the following information is found. Write the letter in the space.

- | | |
|--|--|
| 1. People like to see results. _____ | 2. People need change. _____ |
| 3. People will stay in the same job. _____ | 4. People like to decide some things for themselves. _____ |
| 5. People need to talk. _____ | 6. Managers should tell workers that they are pleased. _____ |

Happy People Do More Work!

- A These days, people who run a business know that it is important to look after the people who work for them. Recent research shows that if employees feel good about their work, they are not only happier, but they are more likely to work harder and perform better. They will take less time off sick and are less likely to leave the company. So what exactly makes people happy at work? We asked 100 people employed by large and small businesses, and these are the five most important factors.
- B People need to achieve something. They want to see that the decisions they make and the work they do have an end result. People enjoy solving problems and doing things that help other people. Bosses should realize that workers are happy when they are working hard, not when they are doing nothing.
- C People want to be appreciated. They don't necessarily want somebody to keep telling them that they are doing a great job, but they do want somebody to recognize what they have achieved. It doesn't take much for a boss to say 'well done' occasionally, but many bosses just don't think of it.
- D People want to work with people they like. Being part of a team is very important for most employees, and enjoying the company of colleagues makes people want to go to work in the morning. They don't expect colleagues to be their best friends, but they want to have a conversation and share a joke. Most people don't enjoy working alone for too long.
- E People need a degree of freedom. They want to control their own time and make their own decisions. Employees want their bosses to trust them and respect them. Nobody likes working in an environment where somebody is constantly telling them what to do or watching to check that they are busy.
- F People enjoy learning something new. They either want to learn how to do something for the first time or how to do something better. Most people like to feel that they are creating something and don't feel they are doing this if they are repeating a routine day after day.

For questions 7–14, complete the summary with words and phrases from the box.

benefit	succeed	better	achieve	decide	appreciate creative	colleagues	friends	control	tell	improve same

If employees feel happy at work, both they and the companies they work for (7) _____. Workers generally do a (8) _____ job if they are happy. It is important for employees to feel that they (9) _____ something and that the people they work for (10) _____ it. Most people enjoy their job more if they work with (11) _____ who they can communicate with. Employees do not like having a boss who wants to (12) _____ everything they do, and nobody likes being watched. People like to feel that they can learn something new or (13) _____ something they are already doing. Nobody enjoys doing the (14) _____ thing day after day.

D Check the key on page 270. How many questions did you answer correctly?

E Tick the sentences about the reading task that are true for you and think about how you can answer more questions correctly next time.

1. I understand better how the topic sentence makes a paragraph easier to read.
2. I predicted what would be in each paragraph from reading the topic sentences.
3. I'm reading texts more quickly than I was.

Writing 1: preparing to write

A Answer these questions with a partner. Check the highlighted words.

1. Are you generally a sociable person?
2. Do you enjoy other people's company or do you prefer spending time alone?
3. Do you get on with most people or do you have disagreements easily?

B Check the highlighted words and then complete each sentence so that it is true for you.

1. It is really annoying when people _____.
2. It really irritates me if people _____ when I'm trying to _____.
3. It annoys me if somebody _____ without asking first.
4. It is very irritating if somebody _____ when I want to sleep.
5. It makes me furious if people _____.

C Compare your ideas with a partner.

D Talk with a partner. Have you ever shared a room with somebody? Did you get on or did you have problems?

Writing 2: linking words

A Look at these instructions for a typical IELTS writing task.

You are living in a college residence where all the students are in shared rooms. You are not happy with the student you are sharing with because he/she is very inconsiderate. You are finding it difficult to study and sometimes to sleep.

Write a letter to the manager of the college residence and say that you want a new roommate or to move to a new room. Explain why.

Write at least 150 words. You should spend 20 minutes on this task.

B Answer these questions with a partner.

1. Is it an easy or difficult letter to write?
2. Do you need to invent everything, or do you have experience of a situation like this?
3. Can you think of some examples of your roommate's inconsiderate behaviour?
4. Are you going to write in a formal or informal register?

C Read the letter that a student wrote. Write three sentences about what you like.

Example: It is well organized and easy to follow.

Dear Mr Grant,

I am writing to inform you that I would like to either move to a new room or have a new roommate. I know that normally students do not change rooms in the middle of the term. _____, the student who I am sharing with at the moment is very inconsiderate and I am finding things very difficult.

_____, he is very noisy. He listens to loud music a lot or plays his guitar. I have asked him to wear headphones but he refuses. _____, he comes back to the room very late two or three times a week. Sometimes he makes calls on his mobile in the middle of the night.

He _____ frequently invites his friends to the room without asking me first. On two occasions, his friends from outside the residence have slept on the floor. _____, he sometimes borrows my things without asking. He took my electronic dictionary to a lecture last week.

_____ of all this, I am very unhappy. I am not able to study in my room and I am losing sleep. _____, I think that moving to a new room is the best solution, and I would appreciate it if you could arrange this as soon as possible.

Yours sincerely,

Javier Moreno

D Use each linking word below once to complete the letter. Use a capital letter if necessary.

finally what's more also however therefore as a result firstly

E Write each linking word from Exercise D in a space below.

This introduces the first point I want to make about a situation. _____

These introduce more points about the same situation. _____ / _____

This introduces the last point I want to make about the situation. _____

This introduces a viewpoint that is different from what was said before. _____

These introduce the result or consequence of something that was mentioned before.

They are similar to 'so'. _____ / _____

Exam tip: Linking words and phrases help to organize a composition, but only use them if you are confident that you know how to use them properly. A lot of students try to use linking words because they think they should, but they use them in the wrong way.

WB Go to Workbook page 28 for the writing task.

Speaking

A  Look at these exchanges between an examiner and some students. Then listen. What do you think about the students' answers?

- Examiner: So, were you disappointed when you didn't get into university?
Student: No, I didn't care.
- Examiner: So, working in advertising must be very exciting.
Student: No, it's very boring most of the time.
- Examiner: Are you nervous about the exams that you're taking next month?
Student: No, I'm not nervous. I like exams.
- Examiner: What did you think of London? Did you get confused travelling around on the tube?
Student: No, it was easy.

B  Listen to these students answering the same questions. How are their answers better?

Exam tip: You don't have to agree with the examiner, but if you disagree or want to correct a comment he makes, you should do it politely. Introduce your comment with a phrase that tells the examiner you are going to disagree with him.

C  Look at the tapescript and listen again. Highlight expressions you want to use.

D Practise the exchanges with a partner.

Errors

A There are errors in all these sentences. Correct them.

- | | |
|--|--|
| 1. This film is really bored. | 2. I'm feeling very exhausted today. |
| 3. She's absolutely disappointed about it. | 4. It really puts me angry when people say that. |
| 5. Most people are afraid about spiders. | 6. It's a difficult problem to deal for. |

Reading

A Read these topic sentences from the five paragraphs of a text about getting angry and match them with the pictures below. Write a number in the white box in each picture.

1. People who get angry easily are not being kind to their heart.
2. Anger causes the body to react in the same way that it does when it is attacked.
3. People who get angry easily are also more likely to have an unhealthy lifestyle.
4. People can change the way they react to stress, though.
5. Doctors suggest several techniques that help angry people to remain calm and not lose control.

An Angry Heart

People who get angry easily are not being kind to their heart. People who lose control because they have to wait in a queue, because the driver of another car upsets them or because they have a small disagreement with their husband or wife are more likely to have a heart attack than those who remain calm. In fact, men who become angry when they feel stressed are three times more likely to suffer from heart disease later in life than those who do not.

Anger causes the body to react in the same way that it does when it is attacked. The nervous system prepares itself for fight or flight. That means staying where you are and dealing with the situation or running away from the situation as quickly as possible. When the nervous system is on alert, the heart produces adrenaline, and that makes it more sensitive.

People who get angry easily are also more likely to have an unhealthy lifestyle. Because they are less able to deal with stress, they may do other things as a result. They are more likely to smoke and drink a lot of alcohol, and they may have a very poor diet. Their anger may also mean that they have poor relationships at home or at work, and that adds to the problem.

People can change the way they react to stress, though. They need to accept that they cannot change the situation they are in but can change the way they react to it. They need to ask themselves if it really matters that they are stuck in traffic and will arrive home fifteen minutes later than they planned. And they need to think more about how their reactions affect other people and if it is worth losing the respect of other people for no reason.

Doctors suggest several techniques that help angry people to remain calm and not lose control. Doing exercise is an excellent way to relieve stress and generally puts people in a good mood. Taking a deep breath and counting to ten helps people to calm down and gives them time to think clearly about the situation they are in and how they should react to it. Some doctors say that writing down your feelings on a piece of paper when you are very angry is a good idea. It is a way of getting the anger out and is much better than losing control and shouting at people.

B Answer the questions.

For questions 1–6, decide if the information given below agrees with the opinions expressed in the passage. Write (T) true, (F) false or (NG) not given.

1. A lot of people have a heart attack when they are driving. _____
2. Remaining calm will help you to live longer. _____
3. Most people run away from a dangerous situation. _____
4. Producing a lot of adrenaline is always good for your heart. _____
5. People smoke and drink alcohol because they think it helps to deal with stress. _____
6. Angry people feel calm when they are at home. _____

For questions 7–12, complete the notes with words from the passage. Write no more than two words or a number for each answer.

7. Angry people need to learn how to _____ differently when they feel stress.
8. They need to think about how much a certain problem really _____.
9. They need to think more about how _____ are affected when they lose control.
10. If people exercise or do yoga, they suffer less from _____.
11. People should _____ before they react, and counting to ten helps them to do that.
12. Expressing _____ in writing is better than expressing them physically.
