ぶんぽう Grammar

1 これ / それ / あれ / どれ

When you want to talk about "this thing," "that one," and so forth, you can use kore, sore, and are.

これは いくらですか。
Kore wa ikura desu ka.
How much is this?

それは さんぜんえんです。
Sore wa sanzen en desu.
That is 3,000 yen.

We have one word for "this" and two words for "that." Kore refers to a thing that is close to you, the speaker ("this thing here"). Sore is something that is close to the person you are talking to ("that thing in front of you"), and are refers to a thing that is neither close to the speaker nor the listener ("that one over there").

あれは わたしの ペン(ぺん)です。
Are wa watashi no pen desu.

これは わたしの ペン(ぺん)です。
Kore wa watashi no pen desu.

それは わたしの ペン(ぺん)です。
Sore wa watashi no pen desu.

There is also an expression dore for "which."[1]

どれですか。
Dore desu ka.
Which one is it (that you are talking about)?

Avoid using these re series words in reference to people in their earshot as in introducing people:

× これは ともだちの メアリー(めありい)さんです。
Kore wa tomodachi no Mearii san desu.
This is my friend Mary.[2]

2 この / その / あの / どの + Noun

In the last section, we learned that kore, sore, and are stand for "this thing" and "that thing." If you want to say "this book," "that watch," and so forth, you can use kono, sono, and ano together with a noun. In other words, the re series stand alone and are directly followed by wa, while the no series must be followed by a noun before it gets connected to wa. You can use kono, sono, and ano plus a noun in reference to people as well as things, unlike kore, sore, and are, which are sometimes considered impolite if they are used in reference to people.

そのとけいは さんぜんえんです。 Sono tokee wa sanzen en desu.	That watch (in your hand) is 3,000 yen.
あのがくせいは りゅうがくせいです。 Ano gakusee wa ryuugakusee desu.	That student over there is an international student.

If you already know that one of several students is Japanese but do not know which, you can say:

どのがくせいが[3] にほんじんですか。 Dono gakusee ga nihonjin desu ka.	Which student is Japanese?

To summarize:

これ (は～)	この noun (は～)	close to the person speaking
それ (は～)	その noun (は～)	close to the person listening
あれ (は～)	あの noun (は～)	far from both people
どれ (が～)	どの noun (が～)	unknown

[1] Question words like dore and nani cannot be followed by the particle wa. Instead, you must use the particle ga and say, Dore ga anata no pen desu ka. (Which one is your pen?) We will turn to this issue in Lesson 8.

[2] It is okay to use the re series words for humans if you are referring to people that have appeared in an earlier passage, or if you are just pointing at a picture of a person.

[3] Since dono is a question word, just like dore discussed in footnote 1, we cannot use the particle wa with it; we must use ga.

3 ここ / そこ / あそこ / どこ

We will learn just one more ko-so-a-do set: koko, soko, asoko, and doko are words for places.

ここ	here, near me
そこ	there, near you
あそこ	over there
どこ	where

You can ask for directions by saying:

すみません。ゆうびんきょくは どこですか。 Excuse me. Where is the post office?
Sumimasen. Yuubinkyoku wa doko desu ka.

You can point toward the post office and say:

（ゆうびんきょくは）あそこです。 (The post office is) right over there.
(Yuubinkyoku wa) asoko desu.

We will learn how to give more specific directions in Lesson 4.

4 だれの Noun

In Lesson 1, we learned how to say things like Mearii san no denwa bangoo (Mary's phone number) and Takeshi san no okaasan (Takeshi's mother). We now learn how to ask who something belongs to. The question word for "who" is dare, and for "whose," we add the particle no and say dare no.

A：これは だれの かばんですか。 Whose bag is this?
Kore wa dare no kaban desu ka.

B：それは ソラ(そら)さんの かばんです。 That is Sora's bag.
Sore wa Sora san no kaban desu.

5 Noun も

In Lesson 1, we learned how to say "Item A is this, item B is that." We now learn how to say "Item A is this, and item B is this, too." The word for "too" in Japanese is particle mo.

たけしさんは にほんじんです。 Takeshi is a Japanese person.
Takeshi san wa nihonjin desu.

ゆいさんも にほんじんです。 Yui is Japanese, too.
Yui san mo nihonjin desu.

Pay attention to where the particle is placed. In English, the word "too" can be placed after the sentence as a whole, as in the translation above. In Japanese you can only put mo directly after the item that is just like another that has been introduced earlier. In the example above Yui san gets mo, because it is the "likewise" item which shares the property of being a Japanese person with Takeshi san.[4]

A	は	X	です。	A is X.
B	も	X	です。	B too is X.

6 Noun じゃないです

To negate a statement of the form X wa Y desu, where Y is a noun, you replace desu with ja nai desu.[5]

やまださんは　がくせいじゃないです。　Mr. Yamada is not a student.
Yamada san wa　gakusee ja nai desu.

You find several stylistic variants in negative sentences. Ja nai desu is very colloquial. The more formal replacement for nai desu is arimasen. Ja is a contraction of de wa, which is more formal and more appropriate in the written language. Thus in addition to the above sentence, you also find:

やまださんは　がくせいじゃありません。　(more conservative speech style)
Yamada san wa　gakusee ja arimasen.

やまださんは　がくせいではありません。　(formal, appropriate for writing)
Yamada san wa　gakusee de wa arimasen.

[4] We cannot use mo to describe a situation like the following: Our friend, Pat, has dual citizenship; Pat is a Japanese, but at the same time, she is an American. To describe the second half of this situation, we cannot say, Patto mo amerikajin desu, because the sentence would mean that Pat, in addition to somebody that has been mentioned, is an American. Neither can we say, Patto wa amerikajin mo desu. (Japanese speakers would say, Patto wa amerikajin demo arimasu.)

[5] In the dialogues, there are two sentences ending with desu that call for special attention: Are mo takai desu ne (That one too is expensive), and Oishii desu yo (It is delicious). These sentences cannot be negated by replacing desu with ja nai desu, because takai and oishii are not nouns. Are mo takai ja nai desu and oishii ja nai desu are therefore not grammatical. Instead, one would have to say takaku nai desu and oishiku nai desu. We will learn about the conjugation pattern of adjectives in Lesson 5.

Desu and ja nai must always be accompanied by a noun. In answer to a question, therefore, desu and ja nai do not stand alone.

A：にほんじんですか。 Are you Japanese?
Nihonjin desu ka.

B：いいえ、にほんじんじゃないです。 No, I am not Japanese.
Iie, nihonjin ja nai desu.

×いいえ、じゃないです。
Iie, ja nai desu.

affirmative:	（X は）Y です。	X is Y.
negative:	（X は）Y じゃないです。／じゃありません。／ではありません。	X is not Y.

7 ～ね / ～よ

Statements often end with the tags ne or yo, depending on the way the speaker views the interaction with the listener. If you are seeking the listener's confirmation or agreement to what you are saying, you add ne ("right?") to your sentence.

リーさんの せんこうは ぶんがくですね。 Ms. Lee, your major is literature, right?
Rii san no senkoo wa bungaku desu ne.

これは にくじゃないですね。 This is not meat, is it?
Kore wa niku ja nai desu ne.

If you want to tell the listener that you are fully confident of what you are saying and the listener had better believe it, use yo ("I tell you") at the end of your sentence.

とんかつは さかなじゃないですよ。 Let me assure you. "Tonkatsu" is not fish.
Tonkatsu wa sakana ja nai desu yo.

スミスさんは イギリスじんですよ。 (In case you're wondering,) Mr. Smith is British.
Sumisu san wa igirisujin desu yo.

Expression Notes 3

表現ノート
ひょうげん

(～を)ください ▶ (. . . o) kudasai is "Please give me X." You can use it to request (concrete) items in general.

(～を)おねがいします ▶ (. . . o) onegaishimasu too is a request for item X. When used to ask for a concrete object, (. . . o) onegaishimasu sounds slightly more upscale than (. . . o) kudasai. It is heard often when ordering food at a restaurant ("I will have . . ."). (. . . o) onegaishimasu can also be used to ask for "abstract objects," such as repairs, explanations, and understanding.

(～を)どうぞ ▶ (. . . o) doozo is used when an offer is made with respect to item X. In the dialogue, the restaurant attendant uses it when he is about to hand the menu to the customer.

On the pronunciation of number words ▶ Note that the words for 300, 600, 800, 3,000, and 8,000 involve sound changes. "Counters" whose first sound is h, like hyaku (hundred), generally change in sound after 3, 6, and 8. Some counters that begin with s, like sen (thousand), change in sound after 3 and 8. Refer to the table on pages 380-381.

Big numbers ▶ In addition to the digit markers for tens (juu), hundreds (hyaku), and thousands (sen), which are found in Western languages as well, Japanese uses the marker for tens of thousands (man). Thus 20,000, for example, is niman (=2×10,000), rather than nijuusen (=20×1,000). While the next unit marker in Western languages is one million, Japanese describes that number as 100×10,000, that is, hyakuman.

More complicated numbers can be considered the sums of smaller numbers, as in the following examples.

234,567	=	23×10,000	にじゅうさんまん	(nijuusanman)
		4× 1,000	よんせん	(yonsen)
		5× 100	ごひゃく	(gohyaku)
		6× 10	ろくじゅう	(rokujuu)
		7	なな	(nana)

Culture Notes

にほんの おかね Japanese Currency

Nihon no okane

Japan's official currency is the yen, which is pronounced en in Japanese. The bills and coins currently in circulation are the following:

10,000-yen bill

A portrait of Yukichi Fukuzawa (1835-1901), a philosopher and the founder of Keio University.

5,000-yen bill

A portrait of Ichiyoo Higuchi (1872-1896), a writer and poet.

2,000-yen bill

Shurei Gate, the second gate of Shuri Castle in Okinawa.

1,000-yen bill

A portrait of Hideyo Noguchi (1876-1928), a bacteriologist who devoted himself to yellow fever research.

500-yen coin

100-yen coin

50-yen coin

10-yen coin

5-yen coin

1-yen coin

All bills and coins are different sizes. For example, the bills slightly descend in length from 10,000 yen to 1,000 yen. Although credit cards and mobile payments are widespread in Japan, some small shops and restaurants may not accept them, even in major cities. Consequently, most people usually carry a certain amount of cash with them.
