文法 Grammar

1 Verb Conjugation

In this lesson, we learn about the dictionary forms[1], the present tense affirmative forms, and the present tense negative forms.

Three Groups of Verbs

We sort Japanese verbs into three groups based on their conjugation: ru-verbs, u-verbs, and irregular verbs.

(1) Ru-verbs

Ru-verbs are made up of a base which ends with either e or i plus the suffix ru. All ru-verbs, therefore, end with eru or iru. (So, if you see a verb that ends with aru, oru, or uru, you can be sure that they are not ru-verbs.[2])

食べる (tabe + ru)　寝る (ne + ru)　起きる (oki + ru)　見る (mi + ru)

(2) U-verbs

U-verbs are made up of a consonant-final base plus u (e.g., 飲む nom + u). Note that 帰る ends with an eru sequence but is not a ru-verb as defined above. The r sound in 帰る comes from the base and not from the suffix.

飲む (nom + u)　読む (yom + u)　話す (hanas + u)

聞く (kik + u)　行く (ik + u)　帰る (kaer + u)

(3) Irregular verbs[3]

There are two "irregular verbs," する and くる. する is a very productive element. 勉強する is an example of a complex verb formed by a noun and する.

する (suru)　勉強する (benkyoosuru)　くる (kuru)

[1] Dictionary forms are used not only in dictionary entries, but also in actual contexts.

[2] The rule does not hold in the other direction. Not all verbs that end with eru or iru are ru-verbs. The verb 帰る in this lesson is an example. We will learn more verbs like it in later lessons.

[3] They are not "irregular" at every turn. They just follow their own rules.

Present Tense Conjugation

Let's now turn to the present tense conjugation. With ru-verbs, you simply replace ru with masu (affirmative) or masen (negative).

Ru*-verbs

Dictionary form	Present, affirmative	Present, negative
食べる	食べます	食べません
寝る	寝ます	寝ません
起きる	起きます	起きません
見る	見ます	見ません

With u-verbs, you replace u with imasu and imasen. You can think of the change as going up and down in the same hiragana column (shifting between み and む in the column まみむめも, for example).

U*-verbs

Dictionary form	Present, affirmative	Present, negative
飲む	飲みます	飲みません
読む	読みます	読みません
話す	話します	話しません
聞く	聞きます	聞きません
行く	行きます	行きません

帰る is an u-verb, and the verb base final consonant r is kept in the present tense conjugation. So, instead of ×帰ます, we have:

Dictionary form: 帰る
Present, affirmative: 帰ります
Present, negative: 帰りません

With irregular verbs, the conjugation looks like the following.

Irregular verbs

Dictionary form	Present, affirmative	Present, negative
する	します	しません
勉強する	勉強します	勉強しません
くる	きます	きません

Make sure you remember which verb belongs to which conjugation class. It is a good idea, therefore, to memorize each verb as a set: instead of memorizing just the dictionary form, try to memorize the dictionary form and the present tense affirmative, like 行く—行きます.

To recap the rules for telling which verb that ends with hiragana る belongs to which class, we note that if a verb ends with

- aru or oru, it is definitely an u-verb
- uru, it can either be an irregular verb or an u-verb
- iru or eru, it is more likely to be a ru-verb, but it can also be an u-verb.

2 Verb Types and the "Present Tense"

In this lesson we learn about a dozen verbs that describe basic human actions. These are often called "action verbs," and the "present tense" of these verbs either means (1) that a person habitually or regularly engages in these activities, or (2) that a person will, or is planning to, perform these activities in the future.[4]

Habitual actions:

私はよくテレビを見ます。	I often watch TV.
メアリーさんはときどき朝ご飯を食べません。	Mary sometimes doesn't eat breakfast.

Future actions:

私はあした京都に行きます。	I will go to Kyoto tomorrow.
ソラさんは今日うちに帰りません。	Sora will not return home today.

3 Particles

Nouns used in sentences generally must be followed by particles, which indicate the relations that the nouns bear to the verbs.[5] In this lesson, we learn four particles: を, で, に, and へ.

を (Direct object) The particle を indicates "direct objects," the kind of things that are directly involved in, or affected by, the event. Note that this particle is pronounced "o."

[4] We will learn how to describe ongoing actions with these verbs in Lesson 7.

[5] In spoken language, particles are often "dropped." We will learn more about such cases in Lesson 15.

コーヒーを飲みます。 I drink coffee.

音楽を聞きます。 I listen to music.

テレビを見ます。 I watch TV.

で (Place of action) The particle で indicates where the event described by the verb takes place.

図書館で本を読みます。 I will read books in the library.

うちで昼ご飯を食べます。 I will eat lunch at home.

に The particle に has many meanings, but here we will learn two: (1) the goal toward which things move, and (2) the time at which an event takes place.

(1) Goal of movement (for verbs like 行く, 来る and 帰る)

今日学校に行きません。 I will not go to school today.

うちに帰ります。 I will return home.

(2) Time (We will discuss more about this in Section 4 below.)

日曜日に京都に行きます。 I will go to Kyoto on Sunday.

十一時に寝ます。 I will go to bed at eleven.

Approximate time references can be made by substituting ごろ or ごろに for に. Thus,

十一時ごろ／十一時ごろに 寝ます。 I will go to bed at about eleven.

へ (Goal of movement) With verbs 行く, 来る and 帰る, you can replace the goal of movement に with へ. You cannot replace に for time reference with へ. Note that this particle is pronounced "e."

今日学校へ行きません。 I will not go to school today.

うちへ帰ります。 I will return home.

4 Time References

You need the particle に with (1) the days of the week like "on Sunday," and (2) numerical time expressions, like "at 10:45," and "in September."

日曜日(にちようび)に行(い)きます。	I will go on Sunday.
十時四十五分(じゅうじよんじゅうごふん)に起(お)きます。	I get up at 10:45.
九月(くがつ)に帰(かえ)ります。	I will go back in September.

You do not use the particle に with (1) time expressions defined relative to the present moment, such as "today" and "tomorrow," (2) expressions describing regular intervals, such as "every day," and (3) the word for "when."

あした来(き)ます。	I will come tomorrow.
毎晩(まいばん)テレビを見(み)ます。	I watch TV every evening.
いつ行(い)きますか。	When will you go?

You normally do not use に with (1) the parts of a day, like "in the morning" and "at night," and (2) the word for "weekend." Unlike words like あした and 毎晩(まいばん) above, however, these words can be followed by に, depending on styles, emphases, and personal preferences.

朝(あさ)(に)本(ほん)を読(よ)みます。	I read a book in the morning.
週末(しゅうまつ)(に)何(なに)をしますか。	What will you do on weekends?

5 ～ませんか

You can use ませんか (= the present tense negative verb, plus the question particle) to extend an invitation. It should be noted that its affirmative counterpart, ますか, cannot be so used. Thus a sentence like 昼(ひる)ご飯(はん)を食(た)べますか can only be construed as a question, not as an invitation.

A：昼(ひる)ご飯(はん)を食(た)べませんか。	What do you say to having lunch with me?
B：いいですね。	Sounds great.
A：テニスをしませんか。	Will you play tennis with me?
B：うーん、ちょっと。	Um, it's slightly (inconvenient for me at this moment).

6 Frequency Adverbs

You can add a frequency adverb such as 毎日 (every day), よく (often), and ときどき (sometimes) to a sentence to describe how often you do something.

私はときどき図書館に行きます。 I sometimes go to a library.

In this lesson, we also learn two adverbs which describe how infrequent an activity or an event is: ぜんぜん (never; not at all) and あまり (not often; not very much). These adverbs anticipate the negative at the end of the sentence. If you use ぜんぜん or あまり, in other words, you need to conclude the sentence with ません.

私はぜんぜんテレビを見ません。 I do not watch TV at all.

たけしさんはあまり勉強しません。 Takeshi does not study much.

7 Word Order

Japanese sentences are fairly flexible in the arrangement of elements that appear in them. Generally, sentences are made up of several noun-particle sequences followed by a verb or an adjective. A typical sentence, therefore, looks like the following, but several other arrangements of noun-particle sequences are also possible.

私は 今日 図書館で 日本語を 勉強します。
topic time place object verb

I will study Japanese in the library today.

私は よく 七時ごろ うちへ 帰ります。
topic frequency time goal verb

I often go back home at around seven.

8 The Topic Particle は

As we saw in Lesson 1, the particle は presents the topic of one's utterance ("As for item X, it is such that . . ."). It puts forward the item that you want to talk about. You may have noted that the topic phrases in sentences such as メアリーさんは二年生です (Mary is a sophomore), and 私の専攻は日本語です (My major is the Japanese language), are the subjects of those sentences. A topic phrase, however, need not be the subject of a sentence. We see three sentences in the dialogue of this lesson where nonsubject phrases are made topics with the help of the particle は.

メアリーさん、週末(しゅうまつ)はたいてい何(なに)をしますか。
Mary, what do you usually do on the weekend?

今日(きょう)は京都(きょうと)に行(い)きます。
I'm going to Kyoto today.

In the above two examples, は presents time expressions as the topic of each sentence. Its effects can be paraphrased like these: "Let's talk about weekends; what do you do on weekends?" "Let me say what I will do today; I will go to Kyoto."

A：晩(ばん)ご飯(はん)は？
How about dinner?

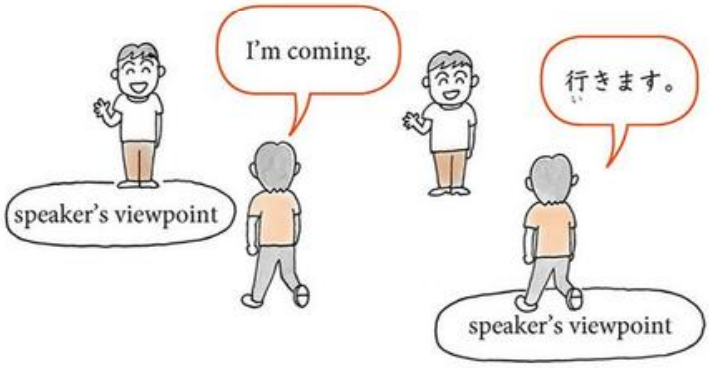

B：食(た)べません。
I will not eat.

In this example, は is used in directing the listener's attention and thereby inviting a comment or completion of a sentence. You may also note that the broached topic, 晩(ばん)ご飯(はん), does not stand in subject relation to the verb, but is rather its direct object.

Expression Notes 4

表現ノート

行く/来る▶When you move to a place where the hearer is, you say "I'm coming." in English. However in the same situation, 行きます is used in Japanese. 来る is a movement toward the place where the speaker is, while 行く is a movement in a direction away from the speaker.

ちょっと▶ちょっと literally means "a little," "a bit," "a small amount," as in ちょっとください (Please give me a little) and ちょっと待ってください (Please wait for a moment). It is commonly used for a polite refusal. In this case, it means "inconvenient," "impossible," and so on. Japanese people don't normally reject requests, suggestions, or invitations with いいえ (No), because it sounds too direct.

A：土曜日に映画を見ませんか。	Will you see a movie on Saturday?
B：土曜日は、ちょっと。	Saturday is not convenient. (lit., Saturday is a little bit.)

はい/ええ▶Both hai and ee means "yes" in response to yes-no questions. Compared to hai, ee is more conversational and relaxed. In more informal situations, un is used.

Hai is also used to respond to a knock at the door or to the calling of one's name, meaning "Here," as follows. (Ee cannot be replaced in this case.)

Teacher: スミスさん？	Mr. Smith?

Culture Notes

日本の家 Japanese Houses

Traditionally, Japanese buildings were made of wood. Rooms were floored with 畳 (straw mats) and divided by ふすま or 障子 (two types of sliding doors).

Modern Japanese houses have mainly Western-style rooms, and are equipped with Western-style toilets (some with button-activated water spray feature). However, most bathrooms retain traditional characteristics—they are separated from toilets and sinks, and have some space for washing one's body outside the bathtub. Usually, all family members share the same bathtub water, so it is necessary to clean one's body before getting into the bathtub.

Another traditional feature of Japanese homes is 玄関, a space inside the entrance where people remove their shoes.
