Reading 1: understanding the function of paragraphs

A Have you visited any of these European cities? What do you know about them?

Barcelona Paris London Prague Venice Rome Athens Istanbul

B Which of the cities in Exercise A would you most like to visit? Why?

C You will read a text about Barcelona. What do you think the text will mention?

D Read this text and check.

BARCELONA

Barcelona is the second largest city in Spain and the country's main industrial centre. The city is the capital of Catalonia, a large region in the north-east which borders with France. It is an important Mediterranean port.

At 100 sq km, Barcelona is quite small, but the industrial area around the city adds another 500 sq km to the metropolitan area. The city is divided into two parts. The Old City faces the sea and is where the historical buildings, such as the cathedral, are located. A modern area, the Eixample, surrounds the Old City. Located here are more famous buildings, such as the church of La Sagrada Família.

Barcelona is one of the most important cultural centres in Europe. There are six universities and a number of other colleges. There are several museums, including the El Museu Picasso (The Picasso Museum), and Spain's most important theatre, El Gran Teatre del Liceu. Barcelona is also the home of one of the world's most famous football teams.

Today, Barcelona is one of the most visited cities in the world. Tourists come to see the architecture and enjoy the city's busy lifestyle. The people of Catalonia hope that Barcelona will continue to be successful into the 21st century.

E Answer these questions with a partner.

1. How many paragraphs does the text have?
2. Why do writers use paragraphs to break up a text?

F Circle the correct option in these statements about using paragraphs.

1. People write in paragraphs to make a text look nice / give a text logical structure.
2. Paragraphs break a long text into chunks so that it is easier / more difficult to read.
3. Each paragraph should deal with one subject / three or four subjects.
4. You should start a new paragraph when you change the subject or make a new point / think the paragraph you are writing is too long.
5. Paragraphs in a text must all be the same length / can be different lengths.
6. The first sentence of a paragraph is usually not very important / the most important.

G Read the text about Barcelona again. Look at how the paragraphs give the text structure.

Reading 2: understanding topic sentences

A Read the text and decide where the first line of each paragraph fits.

1. Modern Venice is trying to overcome many problems.
2. Venice is a city and large port in the north east of Italy.
3. There are no cars or trucks on the islands of Venice.
4. Tourism is very important to the economy of Venice.
5. Around 400 bridges connect the islands that make up Venice.

Venice – Queen of the Adriatic

___ It is the capital of the province, also called Venice. Venice is built on over 100 islands created by around 150 canals in the lagoon at the top of Adriatic Sea.

5. A single road and rail link connects the city to the mainland. This link is protected from the sea by man-made sandbanks. One large canal, the Grand Canal, runs from north-west to south-east and divides the city into two halves.

___ The bridges are for pedestrians only. For hundreds of years, the most common method of transport was the gondola, a traditional boat that is controlled by a single oar. Today, these boats are mainly for tourists. Small motor boats transport local people and produce.

___ The city is considered one of the most beautiful in the world, and tourists come in their millions to see the canals, the squares, the architecture and the art museums. There is a popular film festival every year. The islands of Murano and Burano are famous for glass products and Venetian lace.

___ Because the ground is soft, the city is sinking and buildings need to be made stronger. The area has flooded a number of times, and the sea has caused huge damage. The population is slowly leaving the city as jobs become more difficult to find. Some people are afraid that Venice will be a city where nobody lives – a place only for tourists to come and photograph.

B Look at the first sentence of each paragraph again. Tick the statement below that is true.

1. The first sentence of a paragraph should tell the reader what the rest of the paragraph will be about.
2. The first sentence of a paragraph does not need to be related to what is in the rest of the paragraph.

Exam tip: The first sentence of a paragraph is usually the topic sentence. This means that it tells the reader what the rest of the paragraph will be about. Sentences in the rest of the paragraph should support the topic sentence. If a sentence is not related to the topic sentence, the writer should start a new paragraph.

Reading 3: practice with paragraphs and topic sentences

Exam tip: Reading and understanding the topic sentence will help you to read more quickly. When you read for gist, you can sometimes skip the rest of the paragraph if the topic sentence is clear. When you are doing the Reading Module, understanding the topic sentence will help you to know where to look back to find answers.

A Read only the topic sentence of each paragraph in the text on the next page, and get an idea of what the text is about.

_____ There are museums and galleries and more places to enjoy your leisure time and do sports. There is more choice of bars and restaurants and generally more nightlife. Most people prefer shopping in a city.

Personally, _____ There is more to do and I can meet more interesting people. I can have a better job and make more money. When I am older and have children, I might want to live in the country and enjoy a quieter life.
